

This image shows a vertical stack of 12 musical staves. Each staff is a five-line system with a treble clef (G-clef) positioned at the beginning on the left side. The staves are arranged vertically, one above the other, and are completely blank, providing a template for musical notation.